DEVELOPING PEOPLE FOR BUSINESS SUCCESS

Pro Way Development

June 2013

Greetings!

Do you know who your top innovators are and how to encourage employees to share ideas? Are you implementing the great ideas that are shared and measuring their success?

Get Innovative

Innovation is not just for your research and development department. You will have much business better results if you engage and get innovative ideas from all employees.

A recent study found strong correlation between innovation success and the ability to measure innovation performance.

Most companies don't set goals or measure performance effectively.

Measure Performance

Measuring performance requires setting specific and measurable goals and creating a culture where employees and managers are empowered to contribute and gather ideas from across the organization

Goal setting and measuring performance does not require complex or expensive systems however; if you don't track goals you won't know if you are on the path to success.
